CHARLOTTE SYMPHONY PRESENTS MUSIC WITHOUT BORDERS

March 14, 2017 | Charlotte, NC — The Charlotte Symphony presents Music without Borders on Monday, March 20 at 12 p.m. in the Knight Theater lobby at Levine Center for the Arts.

This free public performance will serve as a recognition and celebration of the global diversity of composers and our own local musicians, and the richness these immigrant cultures bring to the art of music and the human experience.

The 45-minute chamber music concert will include a composition by Charlotte-trained pianist and Syrian-American Malek Jandali, plus works by Mexican composer Manuel Ponce, and selections by Jewish composers performed in the Terezin Nazi war camp during the Holocaust.

“Music connects our community,” says Charlotte Symphony President and CEO Mary A. Deissler. “We are deeply committed to freedom of expression and are inspired to further our community’s capacity for tolerance and empathy through music.”

Venezuelan-born Raquel Lynch, Chief Program Officer for Crisis Assistance Ministry, will host the concert.

The Charlotte Symphony thanks Blumenthal Performing Arts for donating Knight Theater and Crisis Assistance Ministry for financial support of this special community event.

About the Charlotte Symphony

Founded in 1932 and led by internationally renowned Music Director Christopher Warren-Green, the Charlotte Symphony is a non-profit organization that serves the community through music that educates, entertains, and enriches the human spirit. We are musicians, music teachers, and music lovers. We put violins in the hands of Charlotte's children and actively nurture the next generation with our music education and outreach programs. The Charlotte Symphony is a cornerstone of the cultural community, unifying people and adding value to their lives through music.
